Yuma, Arizona, December 5.—A Mexican just arrived reports the discovery of very rich placer gold mines some ninety miles northeast of here. He says that about a month ago he started, with a companion, out prospecting, going up Salt river. When opposite Superstition Mountain they left the river and began prospecting. While going up the mountain, in a little gully of black sand, and down which a stream of water has evidently run years ago, they were astonished to find that in this sand were large quantities of fine gold. In some places the sand was only about half an inch over the granite. The gold is in places the size of a bean, and smaller was found in the little fissures in the face of the bed-rock. Very little washing was necessary, and they found a little spring of water, which furnished them what they needed. They obtained, they think, about $600 in half a day's work. About 2 o'clock in the afternoon they were surprised to see an Indian woman come to the top of the gulch above the spring, and start to come down. Upon seeing them she ran back over the hill, and in less than ten minutes they were surrounded by 50 or 60 savages. The Indians were small, and seemed to be of a different nation than they had seen in Arizona. The Mexicans were not armed, except with knives, and the Mexican says that they were almost instantly caught with lariats. The Indians took them up the mountains and put them in a cave. They tortured and killed his companion, and his fate would have been the same only for his escape. He succeeded in getting away with only a few knife blades in his hands. They lost their gold with all their outfit. The Indians seemed to be cave-dwellers, and were evidently excited over the place being found by outsiders. The Mexican when he reached town was a pitiful sight. His hands and feet were torn and bloody and his face was gashed in a terrible manner.

The report of the Illinois Railroad Company contains the following data concerning the average life of the rolling stock and superstructure of twenty-six roads: Stock cars, 10 years; freight cars, 12½ years; iron rails, 7 years; steel rails, 14 years; oak ties, 7 years; pine ties, 4½ years; cedar ties, 5½ years; truss bridges, 9½ years; trestle bridges, 8 years; pile bridges, 9 years. One road gives the life of its locomotives as 8 years, and of passenger cars 15; another road reports the former at 24 years, and the latter at 20. Only one road puts the life of passenger cars as high as 20 years, and the lowest reported life of such cars is eight years. The shortest life of iron rails is 3 years, and the longest 12; four roads report it at 10 years. Only four roads report the age of steel rails, and they give it as 9, 12, 15 and 20 respectively. These data differ considerably from those of roads in other parts of the country.—[N. Y. Sun.]

The ex-Khedive of Egypt has just lost one of his wives from his harem. A handsome young Italian painter named d'Elia went sketching through the harem grounds. He noticed a beautiful odalisque at one of the windows, and some-way managed to establish a telegraphic communication with her, which was soon followed by a romantic elopement and marriage. How he managed to get her out of the harem is a mystery. The young couple are now living happily at Foggia, and since they are man and wife the Khedive can't claim his former favorite.
He is determined in future to keep his wives from the windows for fear of mere elopements. The young lady in question is said to be a French woman.

Capt. Martini was recently entrusted with a regal golden crown by Pope Leo for King Menelik of Shoa. The monarch being always friendly to missionaries and never eating them—although the practice of his subjects shows that an occasional baked stranger would not be distasteful—was designated to be the bearer of a Papal coronet, and the explorer was to take it. Unhappily the bearer fell among thieves who not only took the diadem, but the accompanying Papal brief, leaving Capt. Martini to explain the incident as best he can.

Silver Reef Miner: The Christy mill, which has been running steadily for nearly two years, will shortly close down for needed repairs.

Wire gold is found abundantly, we are told, in the new specimen-lead lode found between Sheridan and Hill City.
Wire gold has never before been found in the Southern Hills.—[Black Hills
